Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) inmates at the Hancock County Justice Facility are interviewed by Parade Magazine contributing editor Bernie Gavzer Thursday. Gavzer came to Bay St. Louis to report on the progress of newly initiated INS directives for the rehabilitation, education and job training of Mariel Cubans for release back into American society. The local program was the first to award two detainees with GED certification. Gavzer said the story should be published in about 8 weeks. (Echo staff photo by Jacqui Cochran)

America 2000 designation culminates year of planning

Governor Kirk Fordice will be in Hancock County Tuesday to officially designate the area an America 2000 community.

The honor will place the county among the top five communities in Mississippi which have adopted the national education goals.

The designation comes following a year of work spearheaded by the education committee of the Hancock Chamber of Commerce.

"This is just the beginning of the countywide effort towards excellence and innovation in education," stated Kathy Fernandez, committee chairman.

Business leaders, administrators, educators and others joined together to develop a local version of the national goals. "Through a series of community meetings, we customized the goals to meet the educational needs of Hancock County students," Fernandez said. "We feel the goals are truly attainable and in many instances, the community is already working towards them."

Hancock 2000 lists five key goals which promote excellence

Hancock residents give homage through various community programs

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

While the majority of the country honors the memory of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. on Monday with a day off from work, Hancock County residents will conclude a weekend of celebrations beginning with last night's NAACP Supper Theater.

During the annual event, the Martin Luther King Jr. Award was presented to Reginald A. Robinson Sr., 82, a native of Grand Bay, Ala. and resident of Bay St. Louis for 57 years.

Mr. Robinson is a deacon and member of First Missionary Baptist Church for more than 50 years, 30 of those as church superintendent.

Along with his church activities, which extended throughout the Gulf Coast, he was president of the Gulf Coast Sunday School and Baptist Training Union Congress from 1940 to 1976.

He served as treasurer of the Gulf Coast District Brotherhood for a number of years.

Mr. Robinson was Hancock County's first African-American citizen to serve as a school board member. For five years he was a trustee for the Bay-Waveland School District under the administration of Joseph McCullouch.

For several years, he was president of the Valena C. Jones Parent/Teacher Association where all but one of his seven children completed their elementary and high school educations.

Mr. Robinson and his wife of 58 years, Mrs. Bernice Huggins Robinson, are the parents of seven educators: Rosena R. Boarden of Jackson, retired school teacher; Maxine R. Smith of Pontiac, Mich., retired school teacher; Reginald A. Robinson Jr. of Pontiac, Mich., school teacher; Andrew Robinson of Pontiac, Mich., school teacher; Thomas Robinson, PhD, of Dearborn, Mich.; Doris Robinson of Jackson, teacher; and Donald Robinson, PhD, of Pontiac, Mich., elementary school principal.

Mr. Robinson retired from the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company in 1974 following 38 years of service as a laborer.

Today, the Bay St. Louis located St. Rose de Lima Catholic Church and Valena C.

Diamondhead casino begins to take shape

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

Though it is not a done deal, Carl Joffe, in-house legal counsel for Purcell Co. Inc., reported Europa Cruises Corp. presently holds an option to purchase 300-400 acres of land adjacent to the Harrison County line for the intended development of a gambling casino.

Europa is a Pensacola, Fla. based company and names itself as sole stockholder of Mississippi Gaming Corp., which issued notice for a gaming license application.

Joffe stated, the area optioned to Mississippi Gaming Corp. is part of the area known as Diamondhead, but not part of the Diamondhead residential development.

Diamondhead Property Owners Association (POA) general manager Paul Montjoy added, "It (the casino site) is not in the area controlled by the POA."

Joffe said as the land owner, Purcell Co. filed the application with the Bureau of Marine Resources for dredging and construction permission.

Mississippi Gaming Corp. officers are Charles H. "Kip" Reddien, president, and Sharon E. Petty, vice president.

Petty reported the corporation has already completed the gaming license application, and awaits the legal time limit between notice of application intent and actual application submission.

She said her corporation has gaming licenses pending in Port Gibson and Biloxi.

"The Biloxi license has been approved contingent on zoning," she added. "They are working on the boat for the Port Gibson site as we speak."

Joffe commented that as developers within the Diamondhead area for 25 years, Purcell would not jeopardize its investments by selling land to more than one casino developer.

As to whether no other casino interests would be permitted to purchase Purcell owned land as

School board seeks help of legislature for casino funds

BY LIZ HAAS

The Hancock County School Board in a Monday meeting authorized attorney Joseph Gex to appeal to the state legislature for help to obtain a share of casino revenues.

The board approved for Gex to draft a letter to Rep. J.P. Compretta, Rep. Harry Frieron and Senator Bill Johnson requesting their efforts to amend the original local and private bill allowing for money from dockside gambling in Hancock County to Bay Waveland schools.

The board requests the legislature amend certain funds to be allocated to Hancock County schools.

The board approved a resolution to the Picayune Municipal School District to release the Hancock County School Board land located in the John C. Stennis Space Center buffer zone.

The buffer zone land was released to Picayune more than 20 years ago when children residing in that area opted to relocate to school there. Now there are no more students there.

The board instructed Gex to send a letter to Attorney General Mike Moore concerning the Buccaneer Park lease.

In the early 1970s, the board entered into a 99-year lease with the State of Mississippi. Since that type of lease no longer exists, it is to be decided if the lease is valid by determining if there was adequate compensation.

The state maintains the lease offered fair market value at that time.

Gex received board approval to answer a summons in the case of Frances Adams vs. Hancock County School Board District.

Weather delays courthouse repairs

BY LIZ HAAS

Workers have been fighting the weather for over a month to work on repairs to the Hancock County Courthouse.

According to architect Michael Reeves, painting and repairs to the courthouse should be completed in about another six weeks, depending on the weather.

"The workers have been struggling along with this weather," said Reeves.

He said it has really slowed them down to the point that they are still working on the first coat of paint.

After a year of discussion, the board of supervisors decided to paint the exterior of the building, and work was started in late November by Twin L. Construction Inc.

Their first color choice was close to the color of the original brick on the building. The board was dissatisfied with the look when painting was begun, and opted to select a light grey instead.

The courthouse dates back to 1869 and is a state historic landmark.

When additions were made to the building some 50 years ago, a different color of brick was used and painting was done to unify the building.

The bricks on the building will be painted light grey and the plaster detailing and win-

Denning named Harvest Time pastor

Special to the Echo

By Traci Bonney

Harvest Time Church recently welcomed Wynn Denning of Diamondhead as its new pastor.

Denning, a resident of the Coast for almost six years, joined the nondenominational church 5 1/2 years ago.

"I was on my way to Haiti, where I planned to serve as a missionary in Port-Au-Prince, when I felt that the Lord said to come here and go to Harvest Time, which had been founded by Edmond James," she commented.

Prior to joining the congregation of Harvest Time, Denning served as a missionary in Africa, where she helped set up a Bible college, and in the mountains of Haiti. While at Harvest Time, she has worked in several capacities, including secretary, Bible school teacher and school administrator.

She has more than 20 years of experience in church-related fields, and received a bachelor of theology from Fountaingate Bible College in Texas.

She is a member of Endtime Handmaidens International, and has gone to Israel twice in 12 years to attend the Holy Spirit Conference and to celebrate the Jewish Feast of Tabernacles.

Denning is married to James S. "Speck" Denning, an international businessman who owns Satellite Communication Systems and two commercial fishing boats based in Venezuela. They have six children, 19 grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Denning, who assumed the office of pastor January 1, commented about the church on Kiln-DeLisle Road, "If you drive by you'll see all the trees are being cut, and fruit trees will be planted."

"God has said this place will be a city of refuge, and we want to do whatever He has for us, so we're waiting to see what His plans are for this place."

Denning succeeded Raymond Williams Jr., who served with his wife as interim pastor for a year before moving into a new phase of ministry.

"The interim pastor and his family will serve as evangelists under Crusade America, a drama and puppet ministry," Denning said.

Reflections

On Life

By Father Jerome LeDoux, SVD

Drug-rap funerals

Every pastor would drool to see his church filled the way St. Augustine was that day. Every seat had been taken well before the appointed time. The aisle area in the rear of the church was crowded. Even the vestibule had no crawl space.

Sight unseen, people were spied bobbing up and down upstairs in the old choir section. It was a throwback to the old days when many churches prayed with a standing-room-only congregation from the sanctuary to the choir loft.

Looking toward the rear of the church and to the right, an immaculately dressed group of young men caught my eye. Their white tuxedos, white sashes and white shoes made a striking appearance. So did their orderly conduct and demeanor.

As funeral masses go, that one was uneventful until the processional when a jazz band picked up the proceedings at the front door. Then all hell broke loose. St. Claude Avenue was so jammed with people that I could not see the lead car. Straining a bit and craning my head to the left, I finally picked up the hearse.

It actually took some muscle to squeeze through the crush of the crowd. Suddenly, a commotion near the hearse seized the eyes of all. Several of the young men dressed in the impeccable white tuxedos were leaping atop the hearse.

The roots of my hair began to rise as the youngsters sprang from the hood onto the roof and got into a rap dance to the pounding beat of the brass band. Their balance and dexterity under the circumstances were remarkable.

"There will be no jazz funeral! There will be no jazz funeral! Proceed straight to the cemetery!" the funeral director barked into his car phone. The whole situation had taken not just a nasty but a dangerous turn. Several people in the packed crowd including myself were in danger of being crushed against parked cars as the hearse proceeded to move out of the endangered area. Eventually, I reached my hand through the window of the hearse and was taken into the vehicle just before it escaped.

Several blocks down, I was switched into the lead car. We had thought the hearse's hood and roof were dented badly, but the lead car was in far worse condition with its roof hanging well down into the passenger compartment.

Emerging from the cemetery after the burial, the driver of that limousine remarked: "While we were trying to remove those who were dancing on top of our car, several people from the crowd told us the identical thing."

"That's all right, Mr. Funeral Director! That's all right! Rhodes Mortuary! You think you have money, but you will never have the money which these young men have!"

Chilling as it was, this episode was not isolated, though it was the first within my experiences. Two friends have since told me of similar funerals with mob-style drug dealers dressed beatifully and showcasing their own protocol.

In case you are missing the thrust of these events, reflect carefully that what happened there on the periphery of the French Quarter is symptomatic of Everytown, U.S.A.

Respect for neither God nor human nor beast has forced us to rally home, church, school and all groups in our communities to defend, educate and save our youth and ourselves.

and innovation in education by the year 2000.

The goals are:

—All children will come to school ready to learn, and parents will foster the desire to continue the learning process.

—Our local high school graduation rate will improve.

—Every school in Hancock County will offer a safe, disciplined environment conducive to learning and will be free of violence and drugs (tobacco and alcohol).

—Our children will leave grades 4, 6 and 12 having demonstrated competency in challenging subject matters including English, history and geography and will excel in science and math.

—Every school in Hancock County will expose all students to the arts for quality of life to ensure that all students learn to use their minds well. Then they will be prepared for responsible citizenship, further learning and productive employment in our modern community.

"We've taken a business approach in addressing the educational issues of our community," Fernandez said. "With the goals now in place, our strategic action plan will keep progress moving toward the development of a world class education system here in Hancock County."

A two-day designation ceremony is scheduled for January 18 and 19. On Monday, Dr. Mike Walters, superintendent of the Tupelo School District will be the guest speaker for a special Chamber Morning Edition. He will address chamber members and community leaders at 7:30 a.m. at Hancock High.

He will also speak at Hancock High at 10:30 a.m. and at Bay High beginning at 1 p.m.

Leo Seal lab to be rededicated

A rededication of the College of Business and Industry's Leo Seal Jr. Electronic Classroom will take place Tuesday, January 19 at Mississippi State University.

Seal, a Bay St. Louis resident and CEO and Chairman of the Board of Hancock Bank, is expected to attend the public ceremony and reception which will follow.

Seal's latest gift of $25,000 was used to replace the existing personal computers with 41 state-of-the-art units, as well as a printer and supporting equipment.

The 1949 MSU graduate donated funds in 1987 to set up the interactive computing classroom. The dramatic decline in equipment prices and the ability to purchase internal components and assemble the units in-house enabled the college to replace the computers at a considerable price difference. Seal, a two-year letterman on the university's football team, has also provided support for the executive speaker series.

All of the college's four academic units, accounting, finance and economics, management and information systems and marketing, quantitative analysis and business law—use the electronic classroom.

"We are deeply grateful for Mr. Seal's continued support of his alma mater and the College of Business and Industry," said Dean Harvey Lewis.

part of the option agreement with Mississippi Gaming Corp., he stated he was not at liberty to discuss conditions.

Joffe interjected concern for increased traffic through the Diamondhead Yacht Club should be allayed as an access road immediately south of the I-10 interchange would be constructed directing traffic east to the casino site, bypassing all residential areas.

Petty said under consideration are a large casino, golf course and marina.

She said Mississippi Gaming Corp. considered bringing in a cruise boat, but decided only an upscale barge would make sense for the location.

Joffe commented that Mississippi Gaming Corp. is not the first group to have approached Purcell Co. with intent of building a casino at Diamondhead.

He said there are many hurdles to be crossed before a final agreement is completed.

Petty reported to have her home in Florida for sale in anticipation of relocating in Mississippi.

She said local residents would be given first consideration in hiring as "it only makes sense. It would make things smoother and more friendly to have those people there who know the area best, and it would be a great marketing tool."

"Besides, you would have happy employees who would not have to relocate."

"Hopefully by February we will have offices set up in the area."

The Bureau of Marine Resources reports due to filed objections, a public hearing on the Purcell requested dredging permit will be held prior to any final department decision.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

Have you every thought about possibly getting into a different field, or learning how to do something special?

The Hancock County Vo-Tech Center offers such an opportunity on a regular basis with night classes. At present, through Jan. 22, there are registrations being taken for welding, word processing and air conditioning/refrigeration.

If you think you may be interested, give the Vo-Tech a call at 467-3568.

By the way, there are many different courses offered on an as-needed basis at the Vo-Tech.

The Krewe of Kids is getting together and preparing to go with the annual Mardi Gras parade scheduled for 1 p.m. Feb. 13 in the Cedar Point area.

This is a parade for children only and without motorized vehicles, Lisa Coward, parade captain, said.

This is a parade of kids on bicycles, skates, wagons, wheelbarrows, etc.

Parade marshal for this year's parade is Pam Metzler, Hancock County Circuit Clerk.

There will be a king and queen, and they will be selected by a draw.

Parents interested in getting their children (ages 5 to 12) into the drawing for king and queen, can call Coward at 467-0506 for further information.

I know one thing, children of all ages seem to have a good time in the Krewe of Kids parade each year, and children of all ages enjoy the parade as spectators.

M/E/C

Mississippi's All-Stars

It is important, at times, to recognize those people who contribute their time and energy to making Mississippi a better place to live—not the politicians, but ordinary citizens of the state who are dedicated to making a difference.

That's what the Mississippi Economic Council's "Mississippi Business All-Stars" program is about, but it also has another purpose that extends into classrooms around the state.

Each year, students in Mississippi schools receive posters and kits containing information about the All-Stars and why they were chosen.

The purpose of this exercise is to teach our children the value of the free enterprise system, while at the same time offering role models for Mississippi students.

From its inception three years ago, 13 Mississippians have been honored for their efforts in building their businesses, as well as their communities, into the very best they could be.

The 1992-93 All-Stars are Anna K. R. McLean of Tupelo, president and chairman of the board of Journal Publishing Company; Jimmy Fowler of Jackson, owner of Fowler Buick-GMC; and Frank Jones of Richton, president of H. L. Jones and Son Funeral Home.

Previous honorees have included N. L. Carson of Carthage; Jimmie Faye Neblett of Clinton; Joe Frank Sanderson of Laurel; J. Marlin Ivey of Kosciusko; Jack Reed of Tupelo; H. F. McCarty, Jr., of Magee; Morris Lewis Jr. of Greenville; Nancy King, Howard Catchings, and the late J. C. Redd of Jackson.

On January 21, this year's All-Stars will be honored at a luncheon in Jackson. And, after the awards are handed out and the thank-you speeches are given, we can rest assured that the All-Stars will go right back to the work for which they are admired.

Henry Ford once said, "The highest use of capital is not to make more money, but to make money do more for the betterment of life."

Every All-Star who has come along—and all those who will follow—understands the importance of the relationship between business and community, and the need to instill that understanding in the next generation.

Congratulations to the 1992-93 "Mississippi Business All-Stars."

You've got a friend at Boys Town.

Republican Cochran to introduce Democrat Espy to hearing

On Thursday morning, U.S. Rep. Mike Espy will come to the office of U.S. Sen. Thad Cochran, and from there the two Mississippians will walk to a packed committee hearing room in the Russell Senate Office Building.

There, Cochran, the Republican, will introduce Espy, the Democrat, and recommend him for Senate confirmation to become Secretary of Agriculture in Democrat Bill Clinton's cabinet.

It will be, Cochran said last week, "the best introduction Mike has ever had in his life."

Totally apart from their different party affiliations, Cochran and Espy have had a good friendship ever since Espy arrived in Capitol Hill six years ago and they have worked closely together a number of times on legislation and other matters before Congress.

Cochran has gotten along with Democrats far better than his Republican hard-liner Mississippi colleague, Sen. Trent Lott, and is the contact state Democrats inevitably use when they need help on the Senate side.

Witness the fact that the Mississippi Democratic Party did not even field a candidate against Cochran in 1990.

On a visit to Jackson shortly before Congress convened, Cochran intimated to me that he intended to cooperate with the Clinton Administration "in every way possible." Cochran said he was impressed with Clinton's grasp of the issues and problems he and the Congress must deal with.

Lott had been the "designated hitter" for the Senate Republicans to go after the Clinton cabinet appointees in committee hearings, but as of last week's showing in the initial confirmation hearings, Lott surprisingly seemed to be a toothless tiger.

Certainly with regard to Espy's confirmation for Agriculture Secretary, Lott was expected to significantly tone down any probing questions both because of the home state angle, as well as the danger of offending black constituents.

Since Espy is a member of Congress, he was expected to breeze through the Senate committee hearing and confirmation process. The fact that he had over 100 overdrawn checks in the House "bank" fiasco last year wasn't likely to cause any problems since Espy was cleared of any wrongdoing.

There were rumblings last week that a background check of Espy's personal finances may raise some concerns in the Senate hearings, but sources close to the black congressman discounted it causing any problem.

As head of the huge U.S. Department of Agriculture, Espy will have oversight of programs ranging from the School Lunch program to the Farmers Home Administration, an agency that deals in megamillions of dollars in low-income housing loans.

Almost certain to be booted early on is Mississippi's current FmHA director, former State Auditor and gubernatorial candidate Pete Johnson, a convert to the GOP. Ironically, Johnson had been an opponent of Espy in the 1986 Democratic primary in the 2nd Congressional District and charged voting irregularities in Espy's narrow first-primary win.

One name mentioned as a Johnson successor is Norris Faust, Jr., a Quitman County supervisor and farmer. Faust, who is white, has been a strong Democrat and Espy backer.

A top-drawer job under the Secretary of Agriculture's purview is that of director of the Rural Electrification Administration. Significantly it's now held by a Mississippian, Jim Huff, formerly state FmHA director who was named to the REA post last year by President Bush.

The speculation is that Espy will not try to remove Huff, at least for a couple of years, because Espy had given a strong endorsement of Huff when he was nominated for the REA job by Cochran.

But a very well-paid federal job in Mississippi at the patronage of the Secretary of Agriculture—that of regional director (Miss, Ark. and La.) of the President's Council for Rural Development—is likely to be turned over quickly. It is now occupied by Pete Perry, the one-time controversial state FmHA director, and is based in Vicksburg.

Espy no doubt will try to keep the regional rural development post, created in the past couple of years, in Vicksburg. One possibility to get it could be Vicksburg Mayor Robert Walker, a highly regarded black leader.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

St. Vincent de Paul Society resents location controversy

To the Editor:
When is enough, enough? When will it end?

In the beginning of this story, shortly after Mayor Stella Frlot was voted to her position, the Waveland Civic Center was closed.

Occupants were told to vacate and then submit a "wish list" of improvements for the space they occupied, and that they could return in approximately two months, after improvements were completed. That was nearly two years ago. Now, the rest of the story.

On Friday, Jan. 8, Mayor Frlot verbally informed the president of the St. Vincent de Paul Society (SVDP) to vacate the city-owned, annexed building space rented by the SVDP Society.

Back in January 1992 the mayor had the city attorney write for an Attorney General's opinion regarding usage of municipal property for non-profit organizations. The ruling was favorable for the non-profit organizations.

Mayor Frlot personally sent another letter to the Attorney General, again asking his opinion. The reply came back favorable for the non-profit organizations, but stipulated that the city maintain a uniform policy regarding municipal property.

In May 1992, such a policy in the form of Ordinance 230 was unanimously passed. My question: Is the mayor above the law? Can she rightfully ask the St. Vincent de Paul Society to vacate the premises without the approval of the board of aldermen?

The following is excerpted from Ordinance 230: "Whereas, at the first regular meeting in January 1993, the mayor and board of aldermen shall declare what facilities are available for extended use. Those facilities shall be advertised in the local newspaper along with instructions to pick up an application from the city clerk..."

Upon review of the minutes of the first meeting of this year, no space was declared available. However, there is now a public notice advertising space available where the SVDP Society is now located.

We, the members of the SVDP Society, are committed to helping others. We distributed over $40,000 to the needy in 1992, including those with utility bills from the City of Waveland.

We need not be in the middle of controversy and political turmoil; it takes away from our mission. Enough is enough.

Does anyone in our community have space available to donate to the SVDP Society for the sole purpose of helping those in need?

Sincerely,
Jay Fleuriot

Casino's party started New Year off badly

To the Editor:
Those who attended the Casino Magic's New Year's Eve fiasco are aware of the following, but for those who did not, I hope they take heed.

My wife and I had seen the "Casino Magic" ad in the paper promising an evening of wonderful food and good entertainment and decided to go there New Year's Eve. We called and were told that they would quit selling tickets at 5 p.m., so we rushed over at 4 and bought tickets.

Upon arrival at 7:30 p.m., there were two lines: one for ticket holders and one for those wanting to buy tickets. The one for those wanting to buy tickets was shorter, so those people actually got in the door before those of us who had previously chucked down our cash. They never did quit selling tickets.

Many of the food trays were empty when we arrived at 7:30 p.m., but we could see that they occasionally refilled them, as we looked over the shoulders of those in line. We thought we would wait until the line got shorter before getting in line, but it never did.

At 9 p.m. we decided we had better get in line. While in line, a supervisory employee walked by and promised us there would be plenty of food when we got to the tables and that they were serving until 11 p.m. We tried to get a waitress to bring us drinks while we waited in line, but she refused to do so.

At 10:45 p.m., after almost two hours in line, we finally reached the food tables, but there was no food, as promised, and yet another line for something. There were no signs nor employees to tell us what to do or to apologize for the fiasco.

Needless to say, my wife and I both were very unhappy as were the 100 or so people in line behind us. There was one food service person left, down at the other end of the buffet line, so my wife banged on one of the warming pans to get his attention to find out what they were going to do about feeding those of us left in line.

He mumbled something about a voucher and, suddenly, we were surrounded by security people who wanted to go downstairs and "talk about it." We both said "we don't want to talk about it" (I assumed "it" meant a refund), we either want the food that was promised or we want a refund.

After both sides repeated the same statements a couple of times, we were told we were under arrest and roughly escorted downstairs and outside. My wife had a cup with approximately $20 worth of quarters from previous play and in anticipation of playing the slots after eating.

The security people took those away from her before going downstairs and never returned them. Once outside, I questioned the one who was tightly gripping my arm, about his authority to arrest me, at which time he read me a statement and turned me loose. I could not hear the exchange between my wife and the one who was gripping her arm, but they handcuffed her, called the Bay St. Louis police and took her to jail.

So, due to having read Casino Magic's ad for a "fun" New Year's Eve party, I brought in the New Year in the Bay St. Louis Police Department, bailing my wife out of jail.

My wife and I have been members of the Hancock County Tourism and Gaming Committee for two years and supported the promotion of gaming in our county. I am beginning to have some reservations now. Many of the jobs created by Casino Magic were filled by people from outside Hancock County.

I have commented to many people that Marlin Torgensen and his casino plans were a class act. Neither greed in overselling tickets, nor refusing to give us a refund New Year's Eve, falls under the heading of "a class act." Running out of food is easy to avoid, you simply do a little planning.

We, the voters, may have made a mistake voting gambling in. If all we are concerned about is tax revenue and jobs, at any cost, we should also consider legalizing prostitution, at least there you would get a kiss when you got taken!

Diverse issues face House members

Special to the Echo
by Rep. J. P. Compretta
Education, workers' compensation, and the state's budgetary process were among the wide range of issues in the House of Representatives in the past week as lawmakers prepared for the first big deadline of the new session.

Monday will be the last day for introducing general bills and constitutional amendments under the joint legislative timetable adopted by the House and Senate.

Dr. Tom Burnham, the state Superintendent of Education, went before the House Education Committee to review some of the problems facing public schools, including student discipline, a shortage of teachers and teacher salaries.

Meanwhile, the committee recommended approval of a bill to try to ensure teachers are given a voice in purchasing classroom materials and supplies under the 1992 law creating an Educational Enhancement Fund. The measure also must be cleared by the Appropriations Committee before it goes to the full House.

A special report on the workers' compensation system, was presented to the Insurance Committee, updating lawmakers on changes since last year's passage of the landmark workers' compensation legislation.

Officials of the Transportation Department conferred with the Transportation Committee, and state wildlife authorities met with the Game and Fish Committee. Other committees held organizational meetings and assigned bills to subcommittees.

Governor Kirk Fordice appeared before a joint meeting of the House and Senate on January 12 to present his second State-of-the-State address. He announced he was submitting 38 proposals to lawmakers, ranging from a widely publicized plan to reduce the cost of car tags to a restructuring of welfare laws.

ASCS OFFICES

One of the first pieces of legislation to gain House approval was a resolution expressing concern over federal plans to shut down a number of agriculture-related offices in Mississippi.

The resolution urged outgoing Secretary of Agriculture Edward R. Madigan to reconsider a proposed executive order and take a more "methodical" approach before closing the offices, allowing more time, planning and public input.

According to the resolution, the proposed cuts involve 27 Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) offices in Mississippi along with 13 Soil Conservation Service offices and 11 Farmers Home Administration offices.

LANDLORD/TENANT
A measure seeking to clarify a section of the Landlord-Tenants Rights Act also won speedy House approval. The bill provides that a landlord may begin eviction proceedings without a 30-day written notice when a tenant violates a rental agreement by failing to pay rent.

The 30-day notice was reported to have enabled people in some instances to stay on in a house or apartment rent-free as long as 60 to 90 days after paying for only one month. The measure still faces Senate action.

Other House-passed bills included proposals to make sure county supervisors are furnished periodic reports on fees, costs, fines and penalties received by the justice courts, and to allow advance payment of fines in certain misdemeanor cases in the municipal courts and justice courts.

The House appropriations committee received a briefing on a far-reaching package of budget reform proposals prepared by the Joint Legislative Budget Office.

The recommendations are the result of a comprehensive study of budget procedures mandated in the 1992 legislative session.

The 328-page report concludes that the basic framework of Mississippi's present budget system should be retained, but could be strengthened by phasing in a new concept called "M-PAC" budgeting to better interweave the three key elements of programs, priorities and performance.

The 1993 legislative session began on January 5 and is due to conclude by April 4.

If anyone has a problem that I might help resolve or any questions or comments regarding legislative matters, call me at 359-3326 at the Capitol or 467-6515 at home. My mailing address is P.O. Box 1018, Jackson, MS 39215-1018.

Randolph reported doing well in Brazil

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

Former Hancock County School District Superintendent Terrell Randolph, vacationing in Brazil, is reported to be well.

Unconfirmed rumors stated he had been stricken with a heart attack.

L'Amorhead resident and former neighbor Henry Burkhardt said, "An exchange student he (Randolph) was visiting called me some time ago and said he had had some sort of heart related problem; but everything is O.K. now.

"I understand he will be staying a couple more weeks. He is supposed to be taking a motor trip to Rio de Janeiro from the Sao Paulo area this week."

Burkhardt added, as of last week Randolph was reported to be up and around.

Randolph suffered a heart attack in December 1989 while vacationing in Brazil during the Christmas holidays.

Bay High's Natural Helpers enhance skills at Diamondhead retreat

Special to the Echo
By Melissa Johnson
Drug Education Specialist

When young people seek help, they usually do so from one source in particular: their friends. Friends may do the best they can to help, but sometimes they don't recognize the seriousness of a problem or they have incorrect information.

Sometimes they don't know what to do, and end up as involved in the problem as the person who asked for help.

"Natural Helpers" is a program which helps friends help friends.

Natural Helpers is based on a simple premise: Within every school, an informal "helping network" already exists.

The program taps and uses this helping network and provides training to students and adults who are already serving as helpers.

Natural Helpers are not professionally trained therapists or counselors; they are skilled helpers.

The program will have a retreat training on Jan. 21-22 at the Diamondhead Days Inn. The 1992 volunteers, under the direction of Melissa Johnson, sponsor, will help train the newly selected Natural Helpers.

Students get accurate information and learn helping skills to use with their friends.

Among topics addressed during the retreat training will be taking care of oneself, working as a team, knowing when friends need help, expressing care and concern, recognizing situations which require professional helping resources and contacting a resource.

The 1993 Natural Helpers and their respective grades are: Gretchen Arnold (9), Lediya Austin (10), Christopher Boston (10), Danielle Bourgeois (7), Gretchen Breland (12), Brenan Compretta (12), Jessica Compretta (10);

Ellen Felder (9), Laura Felder (11), Derek Gillum (9), Danny Harvill (11), Charles Hawkins (11), Jeff Hopgood (11), Alicia Jordan (10), Valerie Knight (11);

Shelia Kosbab (10), Taaya Lewis (11), Erin Manix (10), Yancy Mayfield (10), Octavia McKay (8), Joy Mitchell (9);

Raleigh Murphy (10), Stacey Ockman (11), Rodney Oliver

(10), Kristie Peares (9), Jamie Rodriguez (10), Jamie Schaeffer (10);

Robin Schambach (11), Miranda Smith (12), Richard Sodin (9), Kyle Spraberry (10), Jennifer Tabor (9);

Patricia Taylor (11), Charlene Tillman (9), La China Tillman (12), Andy Wimbesh (8), Amy Yarbrough (10), Carie Zimmerman (12), and Kellie Zimmerman (10).

Adults selected as Natural Helpers are: Melissa Johnson, sponsor; Marilyn Bailey, Gloria Dean, Walt Esslinger, Rocky Gaudin, Carolyn Hamilton, Mary Kay Jones, Thomas Laird and Ann Lathrop.

Tips On Writing EFFECTIVE Classified Ads

◆ STICK TO THE FACTS
Prospective buyers need to know details, like the condition of the item for sale, the size, brand name, color and any other relevant information that would help them make a decision.

◆ BE HONEST
Aside from being unethical, exaggerating or misinforming potential buyers won't help you make a sale, and may only serve to lose a prospective buyer's trust. Even if they come to look at what you have to sell, they'll be less likely to buy the item or trust you once they see they've been misled.

◆ SPELL IT OUT
Abbreviations are not easily understood by many people and may even confuse a reader. If only take them a second to pass over an ad because it doesn't seem clear, why let it be yours because you abbreviated a description?

◆ THE BOTTOM LINE
State the price. You'll save yourself the hassle of having to answer calls from prospects who, upon learning the price, are not really interested. Price is the first thing they'll look for when reading your ad, and when prospects know the price, you'll know you have a serious buyer on the line.

◆ BE THERE
List the best hours to call and make sure you're at home. If you don't list a specific time, you could be flooded with calls any time of the day or night. And when you're not at home to take calls, most likely, they won't call back.

◆ ASK US
If you aren't sure how to word your ad or what features to include, why not ask us? Our professionals on staff know how to create an effective ad that sells, they're always willing to help, and there's no charge!
